The MindSnack Corner

"A Journey of A Thousand Miles Begins With A Single Step." Lao Tzu

In the last few weeks, we've discussed the importance of goal setting, and how to actually accomplish those goals. The first thing to realize is how true the above statement is. No matter how long the journey may be, it always begins with the first single step. One reason we often get caught up in the clutter of life is because we often try to take the later steps first. Now, understand that it is EXTREMELY IMPORTANT to have a CLEAR picture of both WHERE the thousand mile journey ends, as well as WHAT it looks like, and what it means to accomplish that last step. Covey said it's important to begin with the end in mind, but put first things first. Have you ever felt lost, cluttered or confused about what you are doing in life? This is common when there is no clear end in mind. You probably have noticed how your life seems to go in circles. You seem to face the same kinds of challenges, and obstacles. The quality of your problems hasn't upgraded any. These are simply the symptoms of NOT KNOWING WHERE YOU ARE GOING. Sadly, a great majority of people spend their entire lives reacting to their environment, and never stop to ask themselves what it is they really want. That is actually the first step. Having a clear end in mind will insure that you never let the things that matter most become enslaved by the things that matter least, or as Covey put it, "never get caught up in the thick of thin things."
